COURSE INFORMATION

The Environment (Protection) Act, 1986 authorizes the central government to protect and improve environmental quality, control and reduce pollution from all sources, and prohibit or restrict the setting and /or operation of any industrial facility on environmental grounds. The Environment (Protection) Act was enacted in 1986 with the objective of providing for the protection and improvement of the environment. It also takes into account, The Environment (Protection) Rules lay down procedures for setting standards of emission or discharge of environmental pollutants.

In today's scenario, when there is a big class between environment v. development, the concept of sustainable development very well finds its ambit.

We at The LAW Learners, present this course in order to make our takers sensitive about the rising environmental concerns, and that how the race of development must not leave aside the idea of a healthy and informed environment.

The Course shall help you understand,

- Need and goals of the Environment Protection Act 1986
- Solution to the Environment v. Development issue
- Extent Implementation of the Act
